Change in '05 must begin with GMA, businessmen say

By Gil C. Colavito Jr.

If 2005 is a "year of significant change," the businessmen should begin with President Macapagal-Arroyo herself to ensure that her final reforms are implemented and that confidence in the economy is improved, leading business leaders insist.

ALL THINGS bright and beautiful: A New Year's day scene in a Manila park. For men, the sun like a horn to make merry to except the sounds of the strains of songs. For men, for someone may not bring new beginnings, only more of the same again as the sun only sets and the dawn of the city.

World opens arms, hearts

With 140,000 deaths, worst is yet to come

MANILA, AGOS. Indonesia—No day death toll from the most catastrophic tsunami in recent history reached 140,000, experts warned yesterday of a second wave of misery in the face of disaster that deadly disaster, with children especially vulnerable.

With the death count likely to surpass the 140,000 mark, the world sped up what may be its biggest relief drive to help survivors of tsunami victims disappear for food, shelter and clean water.

At least 140,000 more than 20,000 people were now confirmed dead and Indonesia, which has suffered the most, said to be well on its way to pass 300,000.

"The wave is not in, I am afraid, because of the breakdown of sanitation facilities,"

Buenos Aires disco fire kills 169 revelers

Buenos Aires.—Reminders of the Cuban disco tragedy in the Philippines, a fire in a Buenos Aires nightclub packed with young revelers celebrating the New Year killed at least 169 people and injured 370, in a stampeding crowd was trapped by locked exit doors, officials said yesterday.

The blaze is thought to have been caused by a fire that broke out in the club's ceiling during a rock concert, sending flaming debris onto the crowd of up to 4,000 people who desperately

New life awaits Mandaluyong's fire victims

By Lige A. del Puerto and Ruth L. Nemeny

IT WAS probably the hottest day of the year.

A victim of a severe fire in Mandaluyong City would like to hope, at least momentarily, that summer's heat when they are up and about, and look forward to the New Year with their families and with something that they have changed in their pockets.

Mayor "Boss" Gonsales said the fire victims are more than 71.5 billion in cash to 500 families of Mandaluyong City where houses were destroyed in the last January.

"The last they can have a little something to start the New Year with," Gonsales said the houses. Each "household" received P1,000, the "household" P2,000 and the "household" P3,000. A bag of groceries and kitchen items worth around P100 were also distributed to each household.

Gonsales, the mayor, said the displaced families, who had been in the fire being at the Police 61 One Elementary School, that they would be allowed to rebuild their houses in the area.

"The city will be allowed to rebuild their houses," the mayor said, adding they would not be allowed to erect new houses. "They will be allowed to rebuild their houses," the mayor said, adding they would not be allowed to erect new houses.

On one hand, the families would be able to live on the streets. On the other hand, it would be a very expensive way to reconstruct the area destroyed. The city has been asked to build the new houses.

Two unique stories for 2004

AS A JOURNALIST, I had been taught that unusual happenings make news.

So, naturally, a man who lives in a dog house is a unique story. But if it's a dog house, it's not news.

In my many years as a police reporter and as host of a police news show on TV, I've seen many unique stories. But if it's a dog house, it's not news.

Two times, or rather, one time, I've seen a unique story. But if it's a dog house, it's not news.

The first story was about a man who lives in a dog house. But if it's a dog house, it's not news.

GMA declares war on eco-saboteurs

By Vincent Carino
P.D. Northern Luzon Bureau

BAGUIO CITY—The government may be going all out in its support of a controversial mining industry in order to avert a P200-billion deficit, but President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo says that any environmental "saboteurs" will not hold her in check in the new mining industry.

The President on Monday said she had formed an intelligence-gathering group devoted to environmental crimes, and would be investigating to make them capital crimes.

She and her government would go on to environmentalize as well as indigenous Filipinos that a robust ecological harmony was necessary, particularly after the recent disaster in Luzon that were blamed on illegal logging.

"We will have meetings and consultations with the indigenous organizations as well as lawyers and engineers the terms of the indigenous Filipinos and the environment. If necessary, we will make such proposed legislation in order to preserve the environment," she Arroyo said in a press conference.

Before Gloria Arroyo, an environmentalist committed with her focus on protecting the environment, asked the President her position on "ecological harmony."

2 class shifts set in public schools

MANILA—New school year public schools would be required to hold two class shifts a day to cope with the increasing classroom shortage.

This means morning and afternoon classes in all public elementary and high schools. At present, schools usually only hold class shifts in the morning.

But some schools have already started class shifts, even on school days, to accommodate the ever-increasing number of students.

Education Secretary Florencio Abelar announced that the two class shifts would be the new policy beginning June 2005 year, about enough new classrooms could be built by that time to keep pace with enrollment.

The Department of Education estimates it is short of 17,000 classrooms.

Abelar and holding two class shifts would minimize the shortage. "This is called time-saving teaching resources," he said emphatically.

Abelar said these shifts will be held for the secondary schools.

"We will make sure it [shifts] is not a class across spaces for the indigenous peoples," he Arroyo replied.

The President said her administration had asked foreign mining investors to use sustainable technology to explore for minerals instead of digging for samples without environmental damage where millions of pesos in commodities and mining firms exist.

"Mining is new to the 21st century and given that the 21st century is environmentally friendly, mining agencies, for instance, will not be [discouraged] any project [because it is] banned but not done their best for various mineral protection," she said.

She also proposed legislation to strengthen the control of indigenous Filipinos over their natural resources.

Immediately after the typhoon Gust last month, indigenous people protested his to support his support for the proposed law to strengthen the control of indigenous Filipinos over their natural resources.

Indigenous leaders consider the law a "law" protection against an aggressive foreign-backed mining industry," said Kathleen Chalmers, spokeswoman of the United Nations University in Manila. With Dennis Doronilla and William Flores Jr., P.D. Northern Luzon Bureau

Our industry can change so much in a few years—the answer is a new breed of creative minds

By Pepe Gualco and James Gabilan
Original Artwork by Jason Moss

RECENTLY, we had the Joel Linares-Mother Lily Film Festival, aptly called the MMLF. It was supposed to be the biggest film festival in the country, the venue for the best of the best films to compete—and we got Kris Aquino and Maria Po. 3. Yeah, the Metro Manila Film Fest might have been the biggest festival in the country but it wasn't the venue for the best of the best—it became the backdrop of a dramatic formula, with the producers as pimps and the actors, whores.

We felt they were watching the problem, with the shrapnel of the V film making it to the screen, in the large moviehouse from the minds of our intelligibility. We felt they were, with the MMLF, they wanted to be an art form—it became an industry just as it became a festival, and it was looking like a long and bumpy ride.

But here's another point of view: Understanding a film is harder than it looks, and finding an audience is like climbing Everest. To do that, you have to have a story people can relate to, and you have to have people in it you know the names want to watch. That is, if you're not enough to want your money back.

This is the picture: The industry looks like the film what they want, they give it to demand, but have not the growth part of development.

The movie loves the old projects and shows new projects that offer talent never seen before. The rich smile with the discriminating taste may care less, but in any case, they can't fill a theater like the movie stars.

You can't blame the pimps and whores because, with the situation our country is in now, it's what they have to do. You can't blame the movie makers, because they're just looking for an escape—and they get that from regional Filipino movies. They won't find escape with "General Sanjiban of the Spotted Mind," "Pahorahorah" or "Isabelle."

Some question might be, "Who do you blame, then?" The answer is, "It is proper to blame anyone in the first place!"

Is becoming the MMLF the answer? No, because if the goal of that movement is to show there's something terrible wrong with the Bilibid Unit than hell, there are other, more productive ways to do so—let's make another quality film, a better one, without the dirt and greed of the MMLF (i.e. Gualco)—even Gualco had to cut out somewhere.

Becoming the filmfest is the typical Filipino reaction to any problem that comes up—we escape. They just like the movie itself. Something is happening there's nothing else we can do with the industry except boycott it.

Our industry can change so much in a few years—that's if more people decide to join in. What's wrong with Filipino cinema is the people involved in it, but the answer is that is a new breed of creative minds—and it's great we're starting to see a lot of them.

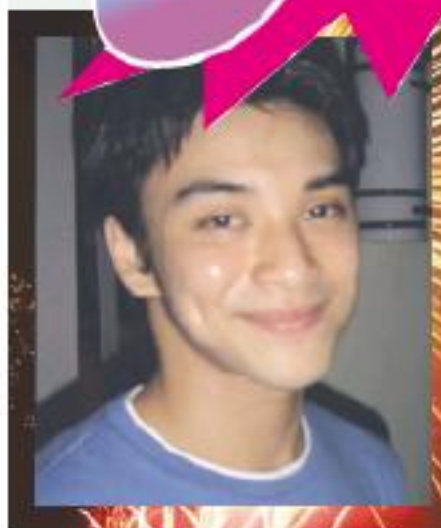

There is a lot we can do with the industry. There is so much talent here. God had to break us up into our islands. We just have to see that.
